THE ROYAL
ZOOLOGICAL SOCIETY
OF SCOTLAND

The Royal Zoological Society of Scotland (RZSS) was established on 18th March 1909.

Over the last 100 years we have given animals the very best care not only here in the United Kingdom but also throughout the world with our conservation work. The majority of animals at Edinburgh Zoo and the Highland Wildlife Park are part of important breeding programmes giving us the ability to ensure we protect animals now and for the next 100 years. With no direct government funding, we rely on fundraising to further our charitable work.

Animal Adoption

Animal Adoption

The RZSS introduced the idea of Animal Adoption during the first winter of the Second World War when members were invited to choose an animal at the zoo and pay for its food and upkeep.

Adoption was a huge success and since then it has grown to over 2000 animal adopters. The annual adoption fee goes towards the feeding of the animals, enrichment, heating indoor enclosures and veterinary treatment at both Edinburgh Zoo and the Highland Wildlife Park.

There are four adoption levels to choose from and you can adopt any species at either park. For a full list of animals available to adopt please visit www.rzss.org.uk.
